

College: Education For Women

Name Of Student: Zahraa Abd-ALSamad Khalaf

Dept: Islamic history

Name Of Supervisor: Asst. Prof. Ali Sadam Nasr-Allah (PhD)

Specialization: Amway history

Certificate: the master

Title Of Thesis

The Impact of Saqalibah on the Fatimid State

Abstract Of Thesis

The tribes of Koutama and Sanhaja were the main force of the Fatimid State, where they had played a significant role in its conquests in Morocco and Egypt. Also, they had an undeniable role in building up bases of the State. Then, the first Caliph of the Fatimid State, Abdullah al-Mahdi, took another route, as he was looking for more trusted people, and finally he found his need in the Saqalibah people. They had formed the other power of the Fatimid State. They were recruited earlier, and were entrusted to manage the State public affairs, which gradually helped them develop in all walks of the State. Therefore, their impact was clear in steering the governance.