Title of Thesis:

The Geographical analysis of the phenomenon of poverty in the city of Zubair for 2015

Abstract:

The trends of modern geography in the study of topics that address the problems of society and its various requirements in the spatial space, and focus on the social studies that fall in the areas of social development, I discovered this message on the following study:-

The study consists of 4 chapters. The first chapter deals with the theoretical concepts of the phenomenon of poverty and its methods of measurement in Zubair city. The second chapter deals with the study of the demographic, economic and social characteristics of the poor, The second included the economic characteristics while the third took the social characteristics, while the third chapter came after the study of the spatial distribution of the phenomenon of poverty in the city of Zubair, while the fourth chapter and the last to be a study of the causes of poverty in the city And its impact on society in the city and ways to address them.

The study found that the percentage of poverty in Al-Zubayr city was 22% of the total population of Al-Zubayr city. The poor registered 0.369% in the development index, which is less than the lowest growth rate of 0.500%. The city recorded a rise in illiteracy among the poor to 11.2%.
